

MyGPcloud Launches Accounting iPhone Application

Latest Online Accounting System Launches iPhone Mobile Solution

SAN DIEGO, July 5, 2011 – RoseASP, one of Southern California’s largest providers of hosted Microsoft Dynamics solutions, today announced that online accounting software users of myGPcloud™, a Microsoft Dynamics enterprise resource planning (ERP) solution available on-demand in the cloud, can now access their accounting data using myGPcloud Mobile, on all iPhone mobile applications.

iPhone users and customers of myGPcloud now have another way to access and create accounting transactions other than logging into their personal computers. Users will be able to view real-time company data, such as sales, cash, orders, receipts and payables due. These key performance indicators (KPI’s) can be made available to specific users based upon security and roles within the myGPcloud ERP solution. All data is refreshed real-time as information is entered and posted into the accounting/ERP online system.

“Since we launched our initial mobile application on Windows 7 in February, we have had an increasing demand for users of iPhones to be able to access their data in myGPcloud” said Linda Rose, president of RoseASP. “Business owners and executives never stop thinking about their operations so the ability to access important financial data on mobile devices is critical as an ERP cloud solution. Creating an application for the iPhone community was another step in our evolution as an ERP cloud provider.”

The myGPcloud service includes all of the rich accounting, business-intelligence and financial-management features of Microsoft Dynamics® GP, as well as automated on-line provisioning, training videos and guides, template setups and technical support. Users can trial the service for one month, without cost, which includes full ERP capabilities such as manufacturing, supply chain, professional services and not-for-profit modules. The myGPcloud application is available in two versions: Business Essentials (plus) and Advanced Management (plus), and is available in all English speaking countries.
